An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Houghour. For comprehensiveness and practical service. this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of latey ears been compolled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in estenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronumistions are given the accents being carefully marked on the be principle hitherto attained. The typograph displays the success of an attempt to make i Chinese and English type porrespond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness net previous attained and dispossing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have beretofors characterized Chinese publications To illustrate the vast scone of the work following facts are submitted for consideration Chaimers Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, while this work contains more than 50.000 English words, and upwar is of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, de pite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely quires examples to display the various an
